ADENAUER TO THE GERMANS: ISRAELI TREATY HELPED US

LEON WEINSTEIN (left) discusses with Bonds leader LAWRENCE SHANKMAN the drive for Israel's economic independence.

TORONTO LEADERS TO HONOUR LEON WEINSTEIN ON TUESDAY

Leaders of the Toronto Jewish community will gather in the hundreds at Beth Synagogue on Tuesday evening, September 25, to do honour to one of its most illustrious members, LEON E. WEINSTEIN on the occasion of the "Israel Bonds Commendation Dinner". Traditionally the outstanding social event of the fall season, this year's event promises to out-do all former dinners as the community prepares a gala welcome as well to the distinguished Finance Minister of the State of Israel, His Excellency Levi Eshkol. Mr. Eshkol is postponing his return to Israel from the U.S. in order to deliver a major address to the leaders of Toronto Jewry, and to do honour to his good friend Leon Weinstein.

Reservations for the dinner are made through the Trustees, Builders and Defenders of Israel who serve as table hosts.

JEWISH LEADER FIRST JAMAICA ENVOY TO U.S.

KINGSTON, (JCNS) — Mr. Neville Noel Ashenheim, Director of the Board of the United Congregation of Israelites has been appointed Jamaica's first Ambassador to the United States. Jamaica gained full independence last month.

The Ashenheims have been prominent in communal and civic affairs since their great grandfather, Dr. Lewis Ashenheim, immigrated to Jamaica in 1841.

The new Ambassador was Chairman of the "Daily Gleaner", founded in 1834 by his ancestors Jacob and Joshua de Cordova, and a director of several companies.

Another prominent Jamaica Jew, Mr. Aaron Matalon, President of the Jewish community and an industrialist, has been appointed Israeli Consul-General to Jamaica.

WASHINGTON, (JCNS) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee unanimously approved last week the nomination of Mr. Abba P. Schwartz, a 46-year-old Washington Jewish attorney, to be Administrator of the State Department's Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs. The Bureau handles immigration, visa, passport and refugee matters.

SEES BETTER RELATIONS WITH JEWS ALL OVER

BONN, West-Germany, (JCNS) — The signing of the Reparations Treaty between Israel and West Germany in September 1952 had not only been an important event for German-Jewish relations, but also for Germany's position in the free world ,the Federal Chancellor, Dr. Konrad Adenauer declared in a special message last week on the occasion of the treaty's 10th anniversary.

The message was published by the "Allegemeine Wochenzeitung der Juden in Deutschland".

The German leader pointed to the official statement he made before the Federal Parliament in September 1951 in which he underlined Germany's readiness to make financial repairs for the wrongs wrought upon European Jewry.

BASIS FOR BETTER RELATIONS

"It is with satisfaction", the message said, "that I may state on this day that Germany has fulfilled her obligations under the treaty signed ten years ago. In this way, a good basis for growing improvement in the relations between the German people and Jewry has been established".

Expressing his satisfaction at the smooth implementation of the treaty, Professor Ludwig Erhard, the Federal Minister of Economy pointed out that the reparation deliveries had created a basis for the development of normal mutual trade between Israel and Germany.

Thus, the trade exchange outside the agreement rose to a total of about 230,000 marks in 1961. German imports from Israel had slightly exceeded German exports to the Jewish State, he said.

$825,000,000 DEAL

JERUSALEM, Israel, this month is marking the tenth anniversary of the signing of the Reparations Agreement with West Germany ,which took place on September 10, 1952.

In a statement before his departure for Canada, Finance Minister Levi Eshkol said that West Germany had fully and precisely carried out the agreement in accordance with its declared aim of giving compensation for the material damage caused by Hitler and his criminal regime. The German Government knew, said Mr. Eshkol, that there was no redemption and no compensation for the destruction of millions of Jews.

Kol Israel devoted a special broadcast to the occasion in which those who were directly concerned with the drafting of the agreement took part: Dr. Nahum Goldmann, Mr. Moshe Sharett, Mr. Levi Eshkol, Mr. Pinhas Sapir, Dr. Shinnar, Mr. Nahum Shamir and Professor Franz Boehm (now paying a second visit to Israel)who headed the German delegation to the negotiations which took place in The Hague.

The Reparations Agreement totalled 3,000,000,000 marks (then equal to $825,000,000), and orders for 85 per cent of this amount have already been placed, although the agreement is not due to expire until the end of 1965.

READY FOR DIPLOMATIC TIES

In an interview with the Israeli press, Professor Boehm stated that West Germany is more ready for diplomatic ties with Israel than before. Whilst the Algerian question was not settled, Germany was wary not to disturb the Arabs. Bonn also feared that if it established diplomatic relations with Israel, the Arabs would as a counter ,take similar steps with East Germany. It was in no mood to enforce the Halstein doctrine.

Also, there was still a kernel of "Arabists" in the German Foreign Ministry — "though many of them do not even know how many Arab states there are nor have ever seen an Arab", Professor Boehm said. This group feared reaction from the Bandung bloc if Germany were to open an embassy in Israel.

On the Common Market question Germany regards Israel's striving for association with the Euromart in the same way as the problems of other countries who are in a similar position, Boehm said.

HADASSAH CONVENTION DISAPPOINTED IN KENNEDY'S EMISSARY

PITTSBURG, Pa., (JCNS) — Chester Bowles, Kennedy's special ambassador for Middle Eastern Foreign Affairs, reiterated on Monday that America's primary aim in the region was "to help all nations to maintain independence from Soviet aggressive design".

Addressing Hadassah's Golden Jubilee Convention here, Bowles said such American aid required "adequate and readily available American deterrents to any military aggression from outside", — meaning American military aid to the Arabs.

He stated that while capacity for controlling specific events in the Middle East "is no more than marginal, there is much we can do to promote and underwrite a new sense of hope throughout the area", and "eventually a relative measure of stability and progress".

Hadassah's nearly two thousand delegates hoped to hear Bowles indicate a change in the administration's policy and direction, pledging support for the United Nations "instruments and ingenuity' 'and reduction of tensions to prevent the Arab Israeli dispute from exploding. They were disappointed. Also Mr. Bowles sounded rather hollow considering the strong arm methods now being used at the United Nations assembly to kill the sixteen power resolution for direct negotiations between Israel and Arabs.

The Hadassah delegates expected a clear change in the administration's continued hostility towards such moves.

The convention heard messages from President Kennedy hailing Hadassah's half century service and from Israeli President Yitzhak Ben Zvi greeting Jubilee. Israel's Ambassador to the U.S., Avraham Harman addressed the banquet and said Israel puts policy of welfare and education above military prowesses. State's defence policy was to promote peace in the Middle East and not to win wars, he said.

Non - Intervention: From Spain To Cuba

A rabbi emeritus of a Toronto temple is quoted by a daily newspaper to the effect that "Canadians do not want U.S. marines in Cuba".—The rabbi made this statement at a meeting where the audience was predisposed, so to speak, to accept such truism at face value while simultaneously it applauded the statement by a Soviet "newspaperwoman" that "we in the Soviet Union have absolutely rejected war as a means to solve our political differences".

With the Soviets in Cuba, the milieu and the atmosphere of this meeting naturally was "pro-Cuban". No wonder, for it was organized by the Canadian Campaign For Nuclear Disarmament, a very noisy group which incidentally always follows the Soviet "peace line".

The present campaign of these peace lovers reminds one of the days of the Hitler-Mussolini intervention in Spain. No less a statesman than Leon Blum, then French Prime Minister, fell for the illusion of non-intervention in Spain. While Hitler and Mussolini were preparing military bases there, all "peace lovers" were talking about neutrality in Spain.

Today the heirs of this appeasement à tout prix are defending with vigor the "sovereignty of Cuba" against the United States. While it has become clear that the Soviet Union is arming Castro's Marxists just across the bay from Miami, the eminent rabbi emeritus says at a public meeting that Canadians do not want U.S. marines in Cuba. Do they favor Russian marines?

The Soviet "newspaperwoman" who represents Pravda reminds us of the underground-Russian quip about the Moscow press. People there say that there is no news in Isvestia (News) and no truth in the Pravda (Truth).

Like all North Americans, Canadians accord every Russian newspaperman the courtesy given to foreign diplomats because those acquainted with the Soviet press know that these "journalists" are really emissaries, envoys of the government, spreading abroad the gospel of the Kremlin.

Just a few days after Khrushchev warned the world with nuclear war—unless the United States allows the Soviet Union to proceed with its program for "peace" in Cuba—Madame Tchtchetkina had the temerity to tell her Toronto audience that Russia "has rejected war".

Did the eminent rabbi call her hand or did he continue the nonsense about American marines in Cuba where a U.S. base has been in existence for many years?

We are approaching the days when a Jew should examine his conscience. I hope all those who fall for the mirage of the Soviet peace effort in Cuba will remember the Talmudic dictum, that any perversion of truth leads to war.

The lessons of the Hitler-Mussolini intervention in Spain are too fresh to be forgotten. Alas, it was this attitude vis-à-vis Spain that encouraged Hitler to his final plunge into the abyss of World War II.

ON EVE OF HIGH HOLYDAYS

No Rabbis For Soviet Jews

MOSCOW, (JCNS) — On the eve of the High Holydays Jewish communities, in more than a half-dozen of the main Russian cities find themselves without rabbis and denied the possibility of training new religious leaders.

The only large Russian cities which still have rabbis are Moscow and Leningrad. Odessa, Kharkov, Minsk, Smolensk and Riga have none. In Kiev, the aged local rabbi, Rabbi Israel Panitch, has been ill for a long time. He is reported to be in no position to carry out his functions.

The situation in Kharkov, where there is a community said to number about 80,000, is not much better. The local authorities still refuse the necessary permission for the appointment of a new rabbi. The previous one died in prison during the Stalin regime. A similar situation is reported is Smolensk where, after the death of the rabbi three years ago, a campaign in the loacl Press led to the closing of several local synagogues and houses of prayer. No new rabbi has been appointed since.

In Riga, too, the death of the rabbi two years ago has not been followed by a new appointment. There is also some fear about the fate of Rabbi Rabinovitch, of Vilna, who was recently dragged into the economic offences trials and is reported to be still in prison.

B.G. BACK FROM SCANDINAVIA

President Aegerson gave a farewell dinner on Saturday night in honour of the Israeli Premier. It was attended by the Icelandic premier, cabinet ministers and many personalities.

Ben Gurion will enjoy a few days rest in Switzerland, according to an official announcement here. He is expected to return home on Sunday in order to attend the weekly cabinet meeting. After that he will take leave in Israel till after the High Holydays.

SHOFAR CRISIS OVER ALGERIA

HAIFA — Israel's shofar maker, Meir Bar-Sheshet, is leaving for Europe to purchase arms' horns.

Mr. Bar-Sheshet told the press yesterday that the uncertain conditions in Algeria had cut off his principal source o fsupply. Formerly he got the horns through a merchant in France.

He purchased a trial shipment from Australia, but the horns had been hacked off and were mostly too small for shofarot. The Algerians remove the horns, together with the skins, thus assuring their completeness.

MIZRACHI CELEBRATION SUNDAY

The Religious-Zionist Movement of Toronto is paying its tribute to the World Mizrachi organization on its 60th anniversary by an anniversary banquet to be held at the Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue this coming Sunday, September 23, 6:30 p.m.

Guest of honour will be His Excellency Ambassador Yaacov Herzog. Rabbi S. M. Zambrowsky, National Chairman of the Mizrachi Hapoel Hamizrachi of Canada, will bring greetings from the national organization and Mr. Meyer W. Gasner, National Vice President, will chair the event.

The World Mizrachi Movement is now celebrating its sixtieth anniversary. At a recent international conference held in Jerusalem, the leaders of the movement summed up its record of accomplishments.

Even before the Mizrachi Movement was formally created its pioneers were numbered among the active and dedicated Zionists. They were in the forefront of the battle for political Zionism and because of them Religious Jewry has become a full partner in the eventual establishment of Israel. The faith of the early pioneers of the movement, their absolute belief that Israel will be established, their absolute devotion to the Tora and spiritual values of Judaism, were the seeds from which grew today's religious settlements, networks of Yeshivot where thousands of young Israelis are studying the Torah and the active participation of Religious Jewry in the government and in the cultural and economic life of the country. — A message from Israel's acting premier, Moshe Shapira, world Mizrachi leader, will be heard at Sunday's celebration.

Toronto Aids Fight Against Disease In Israel

The Joint Distribution Committee is sponsored by the United Jewish Appeal of Toronto through the United Jewish Relief Agencies.

Two groups of immigrants, all over 70, living side by side in Israel under similar conditions, have provided a natural testing ground to support the theory of a casual relationship between a high cholesterol animal fat diet and heart disease.

One group consisted of 220 men and women from Yemen, a desert kingdom on the Arabian peninsula, and the second group was composed of 260 newcomers from European countries.

They live together in a village for the aged, Shaar Menashe, maintained by Malben, the Joint Distribution committee program for aged, ill and handicapped immigrants. JDC receives its funds chiefly from the United Jewish Appeal.

The village for the aged is divided into a number of self-contained units, each with its own kitchen and dining room. Both groups were given the same basic food. However, the Yemenites adjusted their diet to conform with their own eating habits.

There was no significant difference in the caloric intake between the two groups. However, the Yemenites' consumption of animal protein and fat was relatively low (24 grams of animal proteins and 16 grams of fats daily, compared to the Europeans' 60 grams and 35 grams respectively. On the other hand, their vegetable fat and protein intake was slightly higher.

It was the low incidence of heart disease among the Yemenites which promoted the medical survey. The presence of the two groups in the same environment provided a natural control. The studies showed no signs of

RABBIS HERE PREPARE FOR BONDS APPEAL

Toronto Rabbis, and their congregants in all of the houses of worship will once again be as one in their concerted effort to advance the State of Israel's economic well-being through Yom Kippur Appeals in all Toronto synagogues.

At this holiest time in the Hebrew calendar it is fitting that Jewry everywhere should signify its determination that Israel shall continue to build, to live and to prosper for the good of the Jewish people throughout the world. As Israel embarks on the gigantic task of reclaiming the vast southern wastelands which make up the Negev, Toronto Jewry through its High Holy Day Bond appeals will play its own vital role in making this dream become a reality.

Toronto rabbis and prominent lay leaders will call for maximum support for Israel during the High Holiday season through Israel Bond commitments. Toronto Jewry in responding to this appeal will once again demonstrate that ours is the community".

DATELINE: HAMILTON

AS I SEE IT

By PAUL HANOVER

• The invitation read, "Please Don't Dress". So I said to myself: either this is going to be an informal party, or we're being auditioned for one of those realistic Italian motion pictures. The occasion? A Saturday night cocktail party hosted by Mr. Host of Hamilton, Sam Netkin, ably assisted by his ever-smiling wife Tillie. As a matter of fact, the entire ebullient Netkin brood, including daughter Eileen, in from Detroit, were on hand, adding the spark to which every corner of the hotel sputtered and flickered. As exciting as the party promised to be, all the real action took place the week before.

• This "Don't Dress" business can be pretty confusing to our lovely ladies. This is where the social-life version of the U-2 planes went into action, with regular swoops made into beauty parlors, supermarkets, butcher store. No source of information was left untapped as the day of what-to-wear decision came closer. And finally it was made official. The hostess would wear slacks! So, informal it was going to be, and informal it was. Instead of fancy, fussy $200.00-cocktail dresses, the girls wore fancy, fussy $200.00-slack sets.

• I'll just check my wife's notes to give you an idea. Daughter Millie wore a rose colored hostess slack set of moire. The top was highlighted by a frill that ran from the neckline, down the front and right across the bottom, with a rose pinned at the neckline. Teena Zucker created a sensation in her flaming orange harem skirt inspired slacks or gown, contrasted by a floral shirt. Martha Levy looked as demure as ever with her slims, topped by a pure white mohair sweater, the whole front spotlighting a huge embroidered rose. And let's not forget Rose Rosenblatt, who kept telling everyone she felt like Polly Adler in her top-to-bottom gold lame slack set. Then there were the fellows. And believe me, they don't have to take a back seat to any of the gals: Morty Levy's just-arrived-to-Lou Davidson's Diamond-designed cardigan. Lou was all smiles as he took me on a fashion tour, since they were mostly his customers. He was all smiles, that is, until I complimented him on his handsome seersucker, double-breasted sports jacket. "Seersucker," he humphed. "I'll have you know this is silk!"

• But hold on. Here's the greatest. Our host, Sam Netkin, was wearing, now get this, a sports jacket that I hear cost in the neighborhood of a gee-note. It was made of custom loomed-in-Scotland vicuna, featuring solid, gold buttons and topped off by the first-off-the-machine, specially designed, Beverley-Golf-and-Country-Club crest. And would you believe it, halfway through the party he took off the jacket Now, if a guy weren't wearing a jacket that cost a gee-note, then just imagine what his pants must have been worth! It was a Harvey Sobel production, from the invitations right down to the dressed-like-Cubans car parkers. These guys not only were dressed like Cubans — they drove like them too.

• It was a sensational night, made all the more so by the fact there was no Mazel Tov to extend, nor any little envelopes to hand over. And Sam must have really meant this as a non-ulterior motive party, because I didn't spot one bank manager there.

Little incidents keep popping into my mind. There was the cha-cha music of Reuben Rivas, so infectious that it found the likes of old-timers Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Gelber keeping pace on the dance floor with such lightfooted ones as Morris and Fay Leibtag . . . the sad sight of June and Abe Chertkoff, forced to sit on the sidelines because Abe's foot was in a cast (his ankle broke when he tripped on a piece of coal in his shop) . . . there was Hershy Goldhar, explaining to me the reason the crabmeat tasted so good was that he'd just flown it in that day from the Yukon . . . there was Seymour Rosenfeld telling me he'd have to read this column to find out what happened, and then there was Esther Rosenblood, telling me she hoped she wouldn't read anything about it in the column . . . there was that small knot of men clustered around surprise visitor, Winnipeg Blue Bomber centre George Druxman, warning him of what the Ti-Cats were going to do . . . there was Ruth (Labol) Levy, trying to convince me that Harry Adler was a look-alike for Groucho Marx, and me answering: "yeah, but he's a live-alike for Cary Grant."

. . . there was Ken Soble taking twist lessons from the same Harry Adler . . . there was Max Mintz, frustrated because, in spite of his super efforts, most people were talking about the delicious sweet-tasting corn available by the handful in a huge boiling pot . . . there was Sheiky Stein, wandering around with his shirt wide open as though he were trying to say, "What kind of a party is this. Ain't nobody gonna jump in the pool?" . . . and there was this thought running through my mind all night. It's easy to figure why the people who came were here. The real challenge is to figure why those who didn't come, weren't here. All in all, of mein kind's Bar Mitzvah gezogt — the whole party.

THE INTEGRATION CONTROVERSIES

Those who deplore the integration controversy, who feel that it has produced extremists pro and contra would do well to remember the controversy is as old as the century itself and that it by no means has always centered itself in the South.

As a matter of fact, the first extremist pro integrationist was probably Theodore Roosevelt.

Back in 1906, the San Francisco School Board decided to segregate the 93 Oriental students from the 25,000 white students.

This move of the school board grew out of the intense anti-Oriental policies of California. There was much antagonism on the West Coast against Chinese and Japanese immigrants. The feeling against the Japanese was based on the myth that they were not "faithful laborers," meaning by this the Japanese bought land and went into business for themselves.

The exclusion of these Oriental students elicited protest throughout the country and the matter came to the floor of the Congress where, not surprisingly, California found dozens of allies in Southern Congressmen and Senators. Theodore Roosevelt had condemned the discriminatory school board and the Southerners realized if he could force the Californians to retract their policy of segregation, the Federal Government might be able to do the same thing in Dixie.

The San Francisco School Board, along with the Mayor of the City, visited Roosevelt in Washington, much as some decades later an Arkansas Governors visited another President — but Theodore Roosevelt prevailed. The School Board rescinded its order but it did force a compromise. Roosevelt promised and later signed an Executive Order suspending further immigration from Japan. This was the beginning of a process which would eventually culminate in the restrictive immigration legislation of the 1920's and in the McCarran-Walter Act of the 1950's.

The irony here is that the Mayor of San Francisco and three members of the School Board of 1906 were all descendants of recent immigrants: they were Italian, German and Jewish (all members of the famous sect-California's Native Sons). The integrationist extremists like Bishop Rummell of New Orleans, Ralph McGill of Atlanta, and Dr. Frank P. Graham of North Carolina all know injustice is a boomerang; it is just hard convincing people

ELIE WIESEL, Author of "DAWN"

ELIE WIESEL'S powerful novel "Dawn" depicting Israel's struggle for liberation will be serialized in The Canadian Jewish News beginning with next week's (Rosh Hashana) issue. Here France's greatest living novelist François Mauriac introduces Wiesel to our readers. The Editors.

That morning, the young Israeli who came to interview me for a Tel Aviv paper immediately won my sympathy, and our conversation very quickly took a personal turn. It led me to recall memories of the Occupation. It is not always the events we have been directly involved in that affect us the most. I confided to my young visitor that nothing I had seen during those somber years had left so deep a mark upon me as those trainloads of Jewish children standing at Austerlitz station. Yet I did not even see them myself! My wife described them to me, her voice still filled with horror. At that time we knew nothing of Nazi methods of extermination. And who could have imagined them! Yet the way these lambs had been torn from their mothers in itself exceeded anything we had so far thought possible. I believe that on that day I touched for the first time upon the mystery of iniquity whose revelation was to mark the end of one era and the beginnig of another. The dream which the eighteenth century, whose dawn he thought he saw in 1789, and which, until August 2, 1914, had grown stronger with the progress of enlightenment and the discoveries of science — this dream vanished finally for me before those trainloads of little children. And yet I was still thousands of miles away from thinking that they were to be fuel for the gas chamber and the crematory.

This, then, was what I had to tell the young journalist. And when I said, with a sigh, "How often I've thought about those children!" he replied, "I was one of them." He was one of them. He had seen his mother, a beloved little sister, and all his family except his father disappear into an oven fed with living creatures. As for his father, the child was forced to be a spectator day after day to his matyrdom, his agony, and his death. And such a death!

What I maintain is that this personal record, coming after so many others and describing an outrage about which we might imagine we already know all that it is possible to know, is nevertheless different, distinct, unique. The fate of the Jews of the little Transylvanian town called Sighet, their blindness in the face of a destiny from which they would stil have had time to flee; the inconceivable passivity with which they gave themselves up to it, deaf to the warnings and pleas of a witness who had himself escaped the massacre, and who brought them news of what he had seen with his own eyes; their refusal to believe him, taking him for a madman — these circumstances, it seems to me, would in themselves be sufficient to inspire a book to which no other could be compared.

It is, however, another aspect of this extraordinary book which has engaged me most deeply. The child who tells us his story here was one of God's elect. From the time when his conscience first awoke, he had lived only for God and had been reared on the Talmud, aspiring to initiation into the cabbala, dedicated to the Eternal. Have we ever thought about the consequence of a horror that, though less apparent, less striking than the other outrages, is yet the worst of all to those of us who have faith: the death of God in the soul of a child who suddenly discovers absolute evil?

Let us try to imagine what passed within him while his eyes watched the coils of black smoke unfurling in the sky, from the oven where his little sister and his mother were going to be thrown with thousands of others: "Never shall I forget that night, the first night in camp, which has turned my life into one long night, seven times cursed and seven times sealed. Never shall I

CHRONIC

A fellow reported to a shadchan (matchmaker) his meeting with a young girl.

"When I took the girl for a walk," he said, "I noticed that she limps. Does she always do that?"

"No," answered the shadchan, "only when she walks."

COMPARISON

Referring to his last night's date, the young man said to the shadchan, "Look, you told me the girl I took out last night was good looking. Is that your idea of good looks? She's as homely as sin."

Answered the shadchan, "So, all right. Don't get so excited. If you saw my wife, you'd think the girl was a beauty."

Who is Abbey Muter and what is his job at M.C.F.&G.?

Abbey Muter is our Managing Director and that title earns him the toughest assignment in the agency... running it.

Abbey is a kind of "invisible man" because he isn't always directly involved in the day to day contact with our clients. We use his talents to keep forty people in nine agency departments functioning smoothly for our client roster of fifty-two accounts.

Abbey Muter is uniquely qualified for his job. He has a management consultant's eye for organization and systems (a good few of his procedures are used by some of Canada's largest agencies). As a matter of fact Abbey is a director of the Canadian Association of Advertising Agencies and Chairman of the Association's Media Research and Standard Forms Committee. CAAA members place 98% of Canadian Advertising.

Abbey's administrative duties could involve him in merchandising discussions for Shopsy's or Monarch Margarine, research studies for Max Factor Cosmetics and Fiat Cars, or planning campaigns for Consolidated Building Corporation or McGregor Hosiery.

In fact, ask Abbey about any of as many as 40 to 50 accounts such as Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Dorothea Knitting Mills, El Al Israel Airlines, Amphora Tobacco and Seaway Hotels. He sees them from every angle.

If you would like advice or assistance in advertising, call Abbey.

A NEW APPOINTMENT

JUDGE HARRY WAISBERG

We are delighted with the appointment of Sudbury's Harry Waisberg to the York Country judgeship, left vacant by the recent death of Samuel Factor.

Mr. Waisberg has acquired an enviable reputation in Northern Ontario as a communal and civic leader; his participation in the affairs of the Canadian Jewish Congress, the Zionist Organization of Canada and the B'nai B'rith, and his activity for the Congregation Shaar Hashomayim of Sudbury leave no doubt about his sense of Jewish and civic responsibility.

We wish him well in his new career on the Bench where we know he will display the same qualities of leadership, civic and humanitarian concern that he has evidenced until now in his professional and communal career. The Bench which must combine a skilled knowledge of the law with a deep interest in human and social needs. It can use the talents of Harry Waisberg for the ultimate well being of all Canadians.

CELEBRATION IN TORONTO

60 YEARS RELIGIOUS ZIONISM

Concerning the role of the Religious-Zionist Movement, now observing its sixtieth diamond jubilee, one may venture to paraphrase Churchill's famous address about the RAF: many Jews are certainly indebted to the very few of Mizrachi for so much.

When Mizrachi launched the slogan, "the Land of Israel for the People of Israel according to the Torah of Israel", it was very difficult to convince the masses of Torah-true Jewry that building Israel is not a violation of the belief in the coming of the Redeemer but is in accordance with the spirit of the Torah.

Many rabbis of great stature, profound scholars, devoted and pious men fought the Zionist Movement because they misunderstood its true mission and did not perceive the emergency character of the Jewish position in Europe. It took courage for men such as Rabbi Meir Bar Ilan, Rabbi Yehuda Leib Maimon, Chief Rabbi Isaac Herzog and last but not least, the great teacher of spiritual Zionism, Chief Rabbi Abraham Isaac Kook to swim in mid-stream among an orthodoxy which refused to see the omen of time.

Today, after sixty years, Mizrachi-Hapoel Hamizrachi has proven how right its concept of religious Zionism was. Because of Mizrachi, we have today in Israel the greatest percentage of children educated in the spirit of Torah; because of Mizrachi, we have a religious labor movement; we have religious Jews who participate in all phases of Jewish endeavor in the upbuilding of Israel and in the Diaspora as well.

However Mizrachi should not live on the glory of past achievements alone. As the great teacher of our generation, Dr. J. D. Soloveichik of Boston, told its world conference recently: the greatness of Mizrachi has been a fearless challenge to the anti-religious left and fanatical extreme right. If Mizrachi pursues upon this road of independence in ideology and action, it will continue to play the role which history has placed upon it.

WHO SHOULD BE ADMITTED?

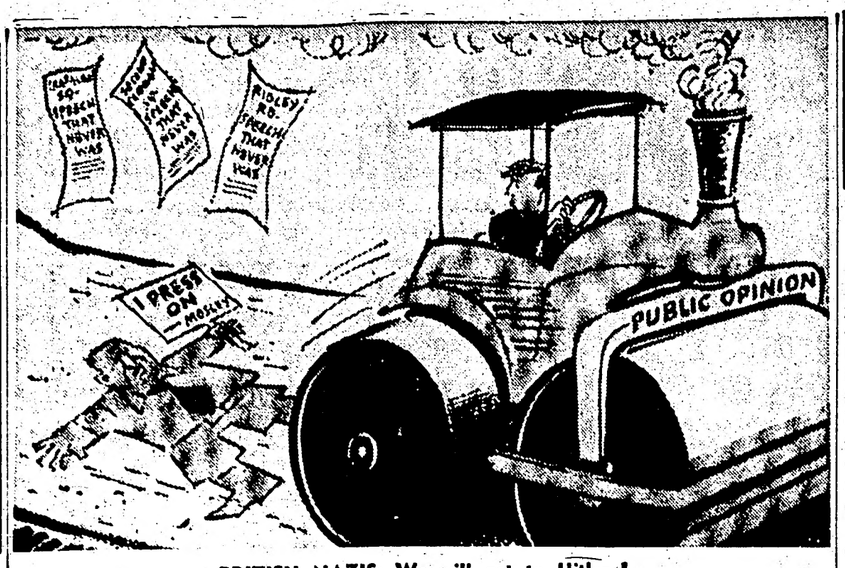
MACLEOD, MUTCHMOR AND IMMIGRATION

We discreetly refrained from commenting a few weeks ago on the remarks of James Mutchmor (the United Church's outspoken secretary of its Board of Evangelism and Social Service) dealing with Canada's immigration policy, since, being a single, uncorroborated statement, it might be looked upon as an episodic "flash in the pan" — and we did not think it warranted comment as such.

However, now that the retiring moderator of the same Church, the Rev. Hugh MacLeod, has expressed himself unmistakably on immigration matters and Mr Mutchmor, who is his successor as moderator, has confirmed and repeated his views, we hardly can avoid expressing a position on this trend of thinking within the United Church clergy leaders — a trend, incidentally, which, fortunately, is by no means an expressed policy of the Church.

We were puzzled at first by Dr. Mutchmor's expression a few weeks ago. Why, we thought, should a churchman be distressed about a "babel of tongues" (as a Christian who follows the Old Testament, he must know that "Babel" was divinely ordained). Does the speaking of various languages tend to make people the less religious (or Christian)? Or was Mr Mutchmor more concerned with Anglo-Saxon hegemony than with religion?

We now see that there was a religious component (if, indeed, it can be called such) in the distress expressed by Messrs. Mutchmor and MacLeod. They are concerned about the influx of Roman Catholics to Canada, brought about by immigration from Europe. However, in their concern, they show considerable muddled thinking. If more people do not come from Protestant countries such as the British Isles or Scandinavia, who and what are actually to blame? Immigration trends cannot be so easily directed or guided. They are dependent on certain inexorable laws of economics quite independent of the feelings of persons like the Reverends Mr Mutchmor and MacLeod. These two would reject a religious denominational quota in immigration yet, essentially, that is what they are asking. Mr. Mutchmor stated he welcomes the new criterion of skills for newcomers as a step in the right direction; yet if this method tended to bring in persons of the "wrong" religion, would this satisfy him? To Mr Mutchmor's disdainful remark against bringing in "forty-second cousins" as close relatives, we would like to contrast the more appropriate resolution passed on the twenty-eighth of last month by another major Protestant Church in Canada — the Anglican communion — which said that, in today's hungry and overcrowded world, Canada cannot afford to have an exclusive immigration policy, it urged a new look at our immigration laws in the light of the distress — political and economic — that prevails in many countries.



BRITISH NAZIS: We will get to Hitler !

LIVING JUDAISM

By Dr. L. Rabinowitz

Rabbi Dr. Louis Rabinowitz is former Chief Rabbi of Johannesburg, South Africa.

I left England in 1945 to take up the position of Chief Rabbi of the United Hebrew Congregation of Johannesburg, and subsequently as Chief Rabbi of the Federation of Synagogues of the Transvaal and the Orange Free State. At that time Anglo-Jewry was under the dynamic and courageous spiritual leadership of the late Chief Rabbi, Dr. J. H. Hertz, who passed away shortly after. During the last years of my ministry in London, and the succeeding five and a half years during which I served as Senior Jewish Chaplain to the Middle East and the British liberation army, I came increasingly under his influence and came to admire him more and more.

Looking back, I think that I can date the beginning of that influence to a sermon which I heard him deliver on an historic occasion in the history of Anglo-Jewry, the simultaneous threefold celebration of the various anniversaries of the United Synagogue, Jews' College and the Board of Jewish Religious Education, which was held in the Great Synagogue on March 21, 1931.

That sermon has since been published, and I have looked up the relevant passage:

"Moreover, the United Synagogue has given its distinctive character to English Judaism. By its example and influence it has made Progressive Conservatism, i.e., religious advance without loss of traditional Jewish values and without estrangement from the collective consciousness of the House of Israel, the Anglo-Jewish position in theology".

ORTHODOXY AND CONSERVATISM

Memory plays strange tricks with us. Before I refreshed it by reference to the printed text I was convinced that the phrase used by Dr. Hertz was not "Progressive Conservatism" but "Enlightened Orthodoxy" — which, incidentally, explains the title of this work. The reason for this mistake is, psychologically, not far to seek. Labels are insidious and misleading things. Since that phrase was used by Dr. Hertz the Reform Movement in South Africa, for instance, falling in line with the name of its parent-body, the World Union for Progressive Judaism, has adopted the name of the Progressive Movement. The word Conervative is associated in the Jewish religious field with the powerful Conservative Movement in the United States. As a result the phrase "Progressive Conservatism" no longer conveys what the late Dr. Hertz intended to convey. By no manner of means can it be used to suggest the idea of "religious advance without loss of traditional values and without estrangement from the collective consciousness of the House of Israel".

Nor, if the truth be told, am I happy about the word "Orthodoxy". It suggests too much a rigidity of outlook against which this whole work is a reasoned protest. I much prefer the phrase "Traditional Judaism" to that of "Orthodox Judaism". Be that as it may, it was this conception of a widening of the horizons of Orthodox Judaism, a recognition of the fact that it left room for a considerable and refreshing difference both of opinion and observance, which was the main characteristic of English Orthodox Judaism.

One has only to turn to the two chief works written, or edited, by the late Dr. Hertz, his Commentary on the Pentateuch and Haftarot and on the Prayer Book, in order to appreciate this face in so far as opinions are concerned. To quote but a few examples, his acceptance of the theory of evolution, his statement that the question of the separate authorship of the Second Isaiah can be "considered dispassionately" since "it touches no dogma, or any religious principle of Judaism, or that the story of Ballam's ass is not to be taken literally, but is "the continuance in the subconscious plane of the mental and moral conflict in Balaam's soul; and the dream apparition of the angel and the speaking ass" are but a few instances culled almost at random, to illustrate that breadth of opinion. That personally I do not necessarily agree with them serves only to strengthen the point which I wish to make.

FREEDOM AND ACCEPTANCE

I do not remember that Dr. Hertz's Orthodoxy was ever impugned or called into question as a result of these or similar statements. His approach is identical with that of Rabbi Dr. Leo Jung, the acknowledged leader and doyen of the strict but broadminded English-speaking Orthodox Jewry of the United States. In a penetrating article on "The Rabbis and Freedom of Interpretation", which forms an Introduction to his "Guardians of Our Heritage", he gives some examples, which could be added to "ad lib.", of the remarkable freedom of interpretation which was characteristic of rabbinic interpretation of the Bible throughout the 2,000 years of such interpretation.

As he says: "As long as one acknowledges the Divine revelation, as long as one recognises the timeless truth of its essential method, one has within the traditions of Judaism a very wide margin of freedom. Indeed, interpretation of such texts is not merely lawful, not merely tolerated as an undeniable privilege, but throughout two millenia we have seen it encouraged and hailed as indications of religious loyalty.... Throughout two thousand years of Rabbinic Judaism that right has been taken as granted".

That there was a similar acceptance of a wide variety of observance within the framework of Orthodox Judaism will be amply demonstrated in the course of this work.

During the sixteen years of my sojourn in South Africa I had largely lost touch with the trends and developments in Anglo-Jewry, and my first stay of any length was one of three weeks during the winter of 1960. Without having to cite chapter and verse the definite impression was borne in on me during that stay, that a definite and, to me, disturbing change had come over Anglo-Jewry, a certain spiritual hardening of the arteries, a rigidity of outlook, which was in striking contrast to the atmosphere which prevailed previously. I came across an example of near heresy-hunting because of a statement made by a certain rabbi. I had the impression that had such views as I have quoted above from Dr. Hertz been propounded there today, they would have evoked pious ejaculations of horror and of official denunciation. The enlightened tolerant acceptance of differences, the freedom of expression, the acceptance of divergence of practice, which I had regarded as a healthy sign of progress, seemed to be denied. Obscurantism and rigidity were given preference over enlightenment and flexibility, and retreat instead of advance was the order of the day.

It was on the last night of my stay in London that during a disturbed night these thoughts crowded into my mind, and out of them arose the decision to write this essay, which is, in effect, a plea for a return to the essential spirit of traditional Judaism, without which, it seems to me, there is little hope of its survival.

WHAT CAN BE DONE FOR OUR TORONTO RETARDED CHILDREN?

By Basil Jackson

Mrs. A dreaded the approach of her son's ninth birthday. He would be eligible for enrollment in cheder and the right age to embark on a course of serious Hebrew study to prepare him for his bar mitzvah and beyond. But how could she enroll him — how could she ever hope to see her only son mount the bimah and recite his maftir?

Little Isaac was a retarded child.

Then a miracle happened. A rabbi from a Toronto synagogue happened to visit Mrs. A. During the course of conversation she mentioned that the boy was retarded. Dare she hope that he could acquire some formal knowledge of Judaism? Could he ever be trained to recite his maftir?

Rabbi Joseph H. Kelman, spiritual leader of Beth Emeth Synagogue, Bathurst Manor, in north Toronto, discovered that the boy was attending a regular day school for retarded children built by the North York Rotary Club. He got a list of 23 Jewish children attending this school and another school for the retarded in the same area. He then asked the parents to come to a meeting at the synagogue and talk about the possibility of starting a school to teach Judaic subjects to their children.

Only seven parents turned up. But they formed a telephone committee and phoned others. Then, one Sunday afternoon, a volunteer squad of Beth Emeth congregants drove 18 children, only two of whom were from homes of members, to the synagogue.

They were enrolled in a school specially arranged for them — the Kadimah School, "kadimah" meaning forward.

And forward they went. Under the care of properly-trained teachers the children were ushered into the synagogue proper, shown the ark and torah. The boys put on prayer shawls and their eyes opened in wonderment at the beauty of the synagogue and its religious objects.

Within five months these children, who had had no Jewish education before, were singing Jewish songs, reciting prayers and blessings, and had learnt about some of the festivals and Bible stories.

With a new confidence, one boy boasted recently:

"I can say the Shema now, and when I go to shul I say the brochos. I like it here, they teach me how to daven."

And a bright-eyed classmate of Kadimah said:

"I'm waiting to go into the shul again — I want to kiss the Torah."

Mrs. A — and all the other parents — are now brimming with hope for their children. They feel that their offspring have been rescued from the total ignorance of their Jewish heritage. One father said gratefully:

"Kadimah is wonderful. I say birkot hamazon after meals now because my son takes an interest. He's ready with the siddur checking up on me!"

A mother of one of the retarded girls says:

"My daughter now makes the blessing over the candles every Friday evening. She is very particular about doing it correctly too."

Yet another mother, who confessed she never used to light candles on Shabbos eve, said she had a thrill worth a million dollars when her nine-year-old son said:

"We'll take the shammes and light the Chanukah menorah."

Curriculum

Rabbi Kelman planned the Kadimah curriculum partly along the lines of the United Synagogue regular pre-Hebrew study program, but at a slower pace. Repetition is important, and patience is essential. An hour

SERMON FOR THE WEEK

THE WILL TO LIVE

Therefore choose life, that thou mayest live, thou and thy seed (Deuteronomy XXX.19).

Time is the most precious element in the life of mortal man, and the realisation that time and life are inexorably passing is forcefully brought home to us on the last Sabbath of the Jewish year when the final pages of the calendar are reached.

Life and death are placed before us, and the Divine Arbiter of our fate imperiously commands us to make our choice. But can there be any reasonable doubt as to what we wish to choose? Shall we not be pounding at the gates of heaven with our entreaties for the continuance of life during the solemn Festivals that approach? Beginning with our Selichot prayers tomorrow at midnight and right through the penitential season, we shall be pleading "as mendicants in the gates" to be remembered unto life by the King who delights in life. What then is meant by this tautologous demand, "Choose life that thou mayest live"?

Parry through we would with verbal fencing, we know the serious import of these words. "Choose life". The life we are called upon to lead demands conscious choice and constant decision. Man is not a puppet of fate. It is not life that determines the path of man, but man who must choose the type of life he will lead.

The Jew who pursues his ethical and moral principles whatever they lead; "whether to his profit or his loss"; whose business is closed on the Sabbath even though economic conditions militate against him; or who observes the dietary laws even though others may scoff at him; — he knows that life does not dictate to him; that it is he who makes the choice as to how he is to live. "Choose life that thou mayest live" means surely to embark upon that kind of life that leads to enduring, living values. The operative words "thou and thy seed" underline this thought. A man's way of life must have significance and content for the person himself, and also emerge as a worthy and worthwhile legacy for those who are to follow.

So many have forsaken the paths of Judaism, not because of any conflict of convictions, but unthinkingly and for unworthy causes. Some for the sake of social advancement, and a vast host of us for no other reason than apathy and indolence. And where this happens, what hope can there be for the continuity of Jewish affiliations?

We shall soon meet and pray together during the High Holidays as members of the great "Kelal Yisroel". But we shall also stand before God as individuals, each one of us accountable for the use we have made of that valued gift of life and of our freedom to choose its path. More than anything else today is the need in Jewish life for personal commitment, personal testimonies of our will to live as Jews.

Too many of us rely with a mystic faith on the slogan of "the eternity of Israel", without realising that it is in our own day-to-day lives and the decisions we make as Jews that eternity is ensured. As we prepare to welcome in the New Year, let this message of our Sidra enter our hearts and insure our mode of living from the beginning of the year to its very end.

CANADIAN PANORAMA

SHABBOS ON THE SUBWAY

The message of the Leiner case is apparently lost on at least one municipal politician. Donald Somerville, throwing his hat in the ring for the mayoralty race, announced as part of his platform a move to get reduced (5c) fares on the T.T.C for those old age pensioners attending religious services: on Sundays for church-goers and on Saturday for synagogue-goers. (Incidentally, didn't Mr. Justice Wells announce that his report on that Commission would be ready in July?

IN A TORONTO COURT

The plaintiff was being questioned in a lawsuit via an interpreter and his counsel, through the interpreter, was putting some routine questions to him. The dialogue went as follows:

Counsel: What is your present occupation?

Interpreter (translating): "Vos iz aier itztike basheftikung?"

Plaintiff: Ich bin a partner in a dress shop.

Judge (in great perplexity): Was that Yiddish?

VANISHING TORONTO

Two sections of Toronto's Ward Four — formerly heavily concentrated centres of Jewish population — have recently been eroded by hospitalitis, the rapid expansion of hospital space and facilities. Only a handful of homes survive on Leonard Avenue, which has been taken over largely by Western Hospital's extensions, parking areas and auxiliary buildings.

Brunswick Avenue, almost half way up to Ulster Street is given over to offices and the main building (constantly growing) of the Doctors' Hospital.

In neighboring Ward Three, Murray Street has virtually vanished before the encroachments like the Mount Sinai Hospital and the Nightingale Nursing School, though actually, the Ontario Hydro played a more primary role in the decimation of the street's housing. Elm Street, from University Avenue westward to McCaul is now completely bereft of resident housing. This is being rectified, however, by the erection of a large apartment house near McCaul — the first such building in this downtown sector, and perhaps the beginning of a trend to downtown living.

BROCKINGTON VISITS THE ARABS

Leonard Brockington, rector of Queen's University and distinguished Canadian attorney, orator, and business figure, was scrupulous in his recent Globe & Mail series on the Arab refugees to avoid apportioning blame for the source of the problem or to say on whose shoulders lies the responsibility for its solution.

Writing in a humanely sympathetic way about the refugees he, nevertheless, does express a hope — very indirectly, of course — that in time they will forget their refugee status and try to make a permanent settlement (presumably in an Arab country): "Perhaps as the landscape grows familiar to the stranger's child, time may diminish the longing of the young whose number will increase if not the passionate desire of the old whose numbers will grow less with the inexorable years. . . ."

THE PIONEERING DAYS — A rare photograph, taken in 1941, when Leon Weinstein (left) and J. Irving Oelbaum, were planning a rescue drive for Jews caught in Hitler's Europe.

A CJN PROFILE

Toronto's Leon Weinstein

With the Leon Weinstein Commendation Dinner on September 25, Toronto will formally launch the "Year of the Negev" Israel Bond Drive. In the presence of the Finance Minister of Israel, and guest of honour Leon Weinstein, it is anticipated that the Toronto community will once again tangibly demonstrate its solidarity with Israel in all her moments of crisis.

Chairman of the Commendation Dinner will be this year's General Chairman of the Toronto Israel Bond Campaign, Lawrence Shankman, who served as Associate Chairman in last year's drive. With Leon and Lawrie at the helm last year, Toronto raised a record million and a half dollars in Israel Bonds. Target this year is two million dollars which will be ear-marked for development of Israel's Negev desert, to provide homes for the thousands of immigrant families now flooding into Israel in numbers as great as those following World War II.

THE GUEST OF HONOUR

One of the most colorful personalities in Canada's business world, Leon Weinstein combines a deep concern for community causes with an intense interest in the arts. A member of Holy Blossom Temple, Mr. Weinstein has served as chairman of the Toronto UJA Drive, past president of the Eastern Canadian Council of B'nai B'rith, member of the Executive Board of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, member of the Rotary Club of Toronto and active member of its Special Events Committee, as well as a director of the New Mount Sinai Hospital, United Jewish Home for the Aged.

Mr. Leon Weinstein is the president of Power Supermarkets.

HELPS ISRAEL'S ECONOMY

Mr. Weinstein's interest in the young State of Israel was intensified in November 1957 when he headed the first Canadian Study Mission to Israel. His response to the dramatic impact of the renaissance of this ancient land was immediate. The vigor of and dedication of its people, the birth of new cities, the flowering of its deserts and wasteland — all these made an intense impression on Leon Weinstein.

With his solid background of experience in business it was natural that the Israel Bond program, providing Israel with economic strength upon which to grow and expand, should have particular appeal to Leon Weinstein. In addition to being one of the major sources of free capital which the government of Israel can direct towards its most urgent needs, Israel Bonds help create the stable economic conditions which form the basis of the flowering of the spiritual and cultural life of the country.

One of seven children of immigrant families who operated a grocery store on a downtown corner, Leon Weinstein is the president and general manager of Power Supermarkets and is also a director of Supersol, a found chain presently expanding in Israel.

He is married and is the father of three children and three grandchildren.

Successful UJA Golf Day

One hundred and forty-six United Jewish Appeal canvassers fought hard for the UJA Golf Day trophy last week at the Northwood Country Club. Hugh Bearg, winner of the inaugural tournament last year stepped out in front again with a four-over-par 74. Last year he took the trophy with a two-over-par 74 at Maple Downs. Second place this year was taken by Leonard Simpson with 77.

The low net race finished with an unprecedented four-place, 74 point tie. Winners were Eddie Donnenfield, Mickey Firestone, Larry Freedman and Harold Siegel.

The Golf Day this year was outstanding for the number of professionals who participated in the tournament. The 1962 Canadian Professional Golfers' Association Tournament winner Alvie Thompson was on the course and later presented trophies to the winners at the closing dinner. other participating professionals were R. Capra, I. Growsky, B. Hamilton, I. Lightstone, B. Mawhinney, B. Panasiuk and J. Rice.

Alvin B. Rosenberg, Q.C. and Harry Nash donated a Challenge trophy for the 1963 tournament scheduled for Oakdale.

Ray D. Wolfe, 1963 UJA Campaign Chairman sent a wire from Europe where he is on a special mission with a group of other Canadians to investigate conditions of immigrant Jews from North Africa. "I have seen much in Marseilles that I would like to share with you," he wrote. Mr. Wolfe will make a full report on the mission to the Toronto community on his return later this month.

Victor L. Van Der Hout, Chairman of the Golf Day Committee, was especially commended by 1962 Campaign Chairman Noel Zeldin for his fine leadership in making the day a great success.

Members of the 1962 Golf Day Committee are: Abby Allison, Ralph Fisher, Herbert Fruitman, Albert Latowsky, Mervin Levinter, Irwin Pasternak, Marvin J. (Bud) Rothschild, Sidney Seligman, John K. Wahl and Noel Zeldin.

THE SIMPLE PLEASURE
By RUTHIE

What, do you think, is every parent's dream? A wedding, naturally. And, if you're the parent of the bride — oh-ha!

Of course, every simkha (joyful occasion) is important — a brith (circumcision), a plain birthday party, a bar mitzvah (male confirmation), a bat mitzvah (female confirmation), a graduation! But a wedding! Right from the cradle, every mama looks towards that day of days.

And if the child is a girl — plans become unlimited.

How many times have you heard a desperate voice cry, "Oi, if God should only give me the strength to see you grow up already, and you should get married and have children exactly like you!"

Later on you hear, "So, go out with the guy. I don't know why you're picking, he's very nice. O.K., you don't have to marry him. But go out!"

And you get, "I wouldn't be caught dead with him. I'd rather be an old maid."

To every mother those last two words pierce like a dagger in the heart. She looks at her gorgeous daughter and, with pain in her breast, thinks, "God forbid! But who knows, she's so choosey."

Finally comes the one-and-only. And mama welcomes him with open arms. So long as he's a good boy and comes from a bollabotsha (good, homey) family, nothing else matters. Her prayers are answered; her sometimes-joy and sometimes-veytug (pain) is a kollah (bride).

Papa, though, isn't so quick with the mazel-tov (congratulations). He wants to know first if the new addition to the family can support his offspring in the manner in which she'd like to become accustomed, or will there be an umzistiker esser (an eater for nothing: a free boarder).

Then come the preparations and, incidentally, a shortage on aspirin. First to book a place. Daughter would like the swankiest hotel in town but she settles for the shool (synagogue) around the corner. (After all, how can you insult the people there when you always get Yom Tov (holiday) tickets for half-price?) But that's just the beginning. The kids would get married the next day, for you can't get a date before next year. Also, the middle of the week is no good for Uncle Mendel — he can't stay up late because he gets up at six in the morning to go to work; Saturday night is out — if it's summer, the day is too long. The wedding must be on Sunday, the only day left. Anyway, whichever date you pick, someone is sure to be mad.

Your troubles, though, aren't even a quarter over. Though the wedding is booked ten months in advance, all your friends tell you it's not too soon to order the gowns.

Will there be bridesmaids? Won't there be bridesmaids? Should they wear contrasting gowns? What's a color-scheme nobody ever had? Orange and purple, maybe? Will it be domestic lace for a hundred dollars or imported lace for six-hundred dollars? They both look alike.

What about the food? Will the main dish be chicken and beef, beef or turkey, steak or squab, beef and fowl? You make the caterer crazy and he drives you crazier.

How about the flowers? And the music, the photographer, the table favors, names or no names on the napkins?

You are advised to engage the services of a consultant. But there papa firmly rebels.

"What! I should let a stranger ride with my child to the shool? And I need somebody to show me how to walk to the khoopa (canopy)? When I got married, I was unconscious. But I made it."

Frankly, on this point I agree. Why can't a wedding be haimish (homey), like when I was a child? If the family wasn't too affluent, it didn't matter. The apartment was cleared of all furniture. All the neighbors pitched in to make the goldenna yokh (golden soup), everybody laughed and cried and entertained each other. For a week the whole neighborhood was fraylikh (joyous). And shoin (that's that).

Don't think it all ends with the ceremony. Months after the wedding, bills keep pouring in. Everytime papa looks at one, 's verrt ihm haiss und kollt (he gets hot and cold).

Still it's a makheya (pleasure). Suddenly the house is quiet, the bathroom is available, mama's face powder doesn't disappear, no dirty dishes in the sink, the bed remains made, papa can relax without competing with jive music.

On all my good friends!

ISRAEL CONSTRUCTS NEW NUCLEAR CENTRE

Mr. D. Lou Harris, National President of The Canadian Technion Society, announced that a generous gift from the Harry and Abe Sherman Foundation, Cardiff, Wales, will make possible immediate construction of a Nuclear Engineering Centre on the Mt. The structure will open up new possibilities for Israel in the field of a nuclear power program for peacetime purposes.

The Department of Nuclear Science and Engineering at the Technion was established several years ago, and is the only academic department in Israel which offers a broad program of instruction and research in this field on both the undergraduate and graduate levels.

RETARDED CHILDREN By B. Jackson

and a quarter every Sunday afternoon — as at Kadimah — is not enough time for the children to grasp anything but the elements of Jewish learning.

Beth Emeth, up to now concentrating on problems connected with buildings and mortgages, has come to feel that synagogues have an obligation to extend their services to the community at large. This is one reason why it was decided to make the Kadimah school open to any Jewish child in metro Toronto. Beth Emeth hopes that other synagogues will set up their own Kadimah's because there are known to be a number of retarded Jewish children in the Toronto area. Kadimah is incorporated in Beth Emeth's educational organization to cover its running expenses.

Going Forward

As a basic philosophy for this type of school, Rabbi Kelman emphasizes that the retarded child must be given something to look forward to, even if it's only one class a week.

His long-range plan is for a three-day-a-week school for Kadimah's advanced pupils. He envisages a teaching program up to and beyond bar mitzvah.

So that Mrs. A may yet see her young son proudly mount the bimah and recite the age-old blessings of the Haftorah on the occasion of his bar mitzvah.

Information

Kadimah will accept students aged 6 to 18. There will be at least two classes to accommodate the differences in both age and capacity to learn. There will be a meeting of all parents Sunday afternoon Sept. 16 in the library of the Synagogue at 2 p.m. Parents are invited to bring the children then, when they will be put into classes.

The experience of Kadimah last year has shown that retarded children can learn.

If you know of anyone with a retarded Jewish child tell them about Beth Emeth's Kadimah School and the wonderful work it is doing. For further information call the Beth Emeth office ME. 3-3838, MI. 5-1633. Officials of synagogues are also invited to enquire about the running of their own Kadimah Schools.

HISTORIC RALLY

WORLD CONFERENCE FOR JEWISH EDUCATION — IT'S SIGNIFICANCE

At the World Conference on Jewish Education recently held in Jerusalem, Dr. Joseph Diamond of Toronto who is president of America's National Council of Jewish Education played a leading role.

Dr. Diamond who is Executive Director, Bureau of Jewish Education, Toronto, Ontario was leader of the Educators Section of the American Delegation and member of the Presidium of the World Conference on Jewish Education.

In addition to Dr. Diamond, following were the members of the Canadian Delegation: Mr. S. Ogden of Toronto, who acted as Chairman of the Canadian Delegation; Rabbi R. Lewittes of Montreal who was Co-chairman of the Workshop on Secondary and Youth Education; Mr. S. Lerner of Montreal; Dr. Samuel Levine of Montreal, who was a member of the Steering Committee; and Dr. Joseph Klinghofer of Toronto who prepared the Resolution for the Workshop on Adult Education.

Upon the suggestion of the editors of The Canadian Jewish News, Dr. Diamond has submitted to us an interim report on this historic assembly. This report was prepared by Dr. Moshe Avidor, Secretary-General of the Jewish Agency.

Excerpts from this interesting report follow:

The World Conference on Jewish Education was convened by the World Conference of Jewish Organizations, known by its initials as COJO. COJO comprises ten world or countrywide Jewish bodies — the World Jewish Congress, B'nai B'rith, the American Jewish Congress, the American Jewish Labour Committee, the Canadian Jewish Congress, the Argentine DAIA, the Board of Deputies of British Jews, the French CRIF, the South African Jewish Board of Deputies and the Central Council of Australian Jewry. The Jewish Agency participates in COJO as an observer.

COJO commenced its deliberations on convening an education conference, early in 1960. In the summer of 1960, some fifty Jewish educators met in Paris, at the invitation of COJO, and discussed the issues involved in convening a world conference on Jewish education —its nature, venue and date. Two years of further deliberations and prepartion elapsed, and the Conference opened on August 12, 1962, on the premises of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

About 200 delegates participated in the Conference representing the following 30 countries: Algeria, Argentina, Austria, Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Costa-Rica, Cuba, Denmark, France, Germany, Greece, Holland, India, Iran, Israel, Italy, Jamaica, Mexico, New Zealand, South Africa, Sweden, Switzerland, Venezuela, United Kingdom, Uruguay, U.S.A. Yugoslavia. In addition, the Conference was attended by some 150 alternate delegates and observers, as well as by numerous guests from many countries Approximately half the delegates were lay-leaders in the field of education, the professional educators constituting the second half. The largest delegation came from the U.S.A., comprising 60 delegates (30 lay people headed by Mr. Julius Fligelman of Los Angeles, 30 Educators headed by Dr. Joseph Diamond of Toronto, President of National Council of Jewish Education), 30 alternates and many observers. The Israeli delegation included 30 delegates, most of them educators of experience in Jewish education in the Diaspora; the French delegation consisted of 15 delegates, the Argentine — 13, the British — 11, Canada — 6, South Africa had 5, while the other countries were represented by 1 — 4 delegates. The Canadian J. Diamond, J. Klinghofer, Samuel Levine and Messrs. S. Lerner, Rabbi R. Lewittes, and S. Ogden who acted as Chairman of the Canadian Delegation.

The Conference was attended by observers from the following Jewish Organizations: the J.D.C. the Claims Conference, Wizo, the American Jewish Committee, the Standing Conference on European Jewish Community Services, and the Scandinavian Jewish Youth Federation.

EDUCATION IN THE DIASPORA

A Preliminary Report on Jewish Education in the Diaspora had been prepared for the Conference, with the financial assistance of the Claims Conference, by Dr. U. Z. Engelman, of the American Association for Jewish Education. This survey, as well as the summary of the study on "Jewish Education in the U.S.A.", made by Prof. A. M. Dushkin and Dr. U. Z. Engelman in 1959, both of which had been written originally in English, were distributed among the English-speaking participants in the Conference. Summaries of these two studies were made available to other participants, in Hebrew, French and Yiddish. All material was made available to the delegates in four languages — Hebrew, English, French, and Yiddish. Simultaneous translations in these languages were provided during all the plenary sessions.

THE OPENING SESSION

The gala opening of the Conference took place on the evening of August 12, 1962, in the Wise Auditorium of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. The Chairman of the session, Mr. Label Katz, spoke briefly on the significance of the problems of Jewish education in the Diaspora. Greetings to the Conference were brought by Mr Abba Eban, Minister of Education and Culture, by the Vice-Mayor of Jerusalem and by the leaders of three largest delegates from the U.S.A., France, and the Argentine. Dr. N. Goldmann delivered the principal address of the evening, on the Problem of Jewish Education in the Diaspora as Relevant to the Situation of the Jewish People. Before the Session concluded eight Workshops and two Committees were set up, and a Presidium was appointed consisting of the following: Abba Evan, Minister of Education & Culture — Israel; David Beit Aryn, Israel; Julius Fligelman, U.S.A.; Dr. Joseph Diamond, U.S.A.-Canada; Dr. Nahum Goldmann, COJO; Mrs. Rose Halprin, U.S.A., Sir Barnett Janner, COJO; Dr. Tuvia Kamenshein, Argentina; Mr. Label Katz, COJO; Mr. Moshe Kerminian, Iran; Rabbi Mordechai Kirshblum, U.S.A.; Dr. Vidal Modiano, France; Mr. Jacob Patt, U.S.A.; Dr. Joachim Prinz, U.S.A.; Mr. Moshe Sharett, Israel; Mr. Zalman Shazar, Israel; Dr. Robert Vajs, Yugoslavia; Secretary: Mr. Y. Hellmman.

THE WORK OF THE CONFERENCE

In order to enable the representatives of all trends of Jewish thought and education to take part in the Conference, the conveners laid down the rule that the plenary sessions should not engage in ideological deliberations and that all discussions on educational issues be assigned to eight workshops. The Conference thus succeeded in concentrating its efforts on what is common in education to all Jewish communities rather than what divides them. Two plenary sessions were devoted to the central problem of "Jewish Teachers in the Diaspora". Addresses were delivered by Prof. I. Silbershlag from the U.S.A., Prof. E. Simon from Israel, Mr. H. Finkelstein from Argentine and Prof. M. M. Kaplan from the U.S.A. Two additional plenary sessions were devoted to reports from eight workshops, delivered by their co-chairmen and rapporteurs and briefly discussed from the floor. The final session adopted a Proclamation submitted by Rabbi M. Perlzweig of the World Jewish Congress in English, and a Declaration submitted by Dr. Joseph Diamond in Hebrew on behalf of the Educators Section of the American Delegation which he headed. A report of the Resolutions Committee by Mr. J. Freed of the U.S.A. and addresses by Rabbi Dr. J. Lookstein of the U.S.A. and Mr. Moshe Sharett concluded the Conference.

RESOLUTIONS

The closing session of the Conference approved a general Proclamation and a declaration submitted by Dr Joseph Diamond on behalf of the educators from the U.S.A. and Canada as well as the Report of the Resolutions Committee which consists of three parts; a statement, describing the situation of Jewish Education in the Diaspora; an appeal to parents, educators, communities and orgnizations to do their utmost for the strengthening of Jewish education; and finally — a proposal for the setting up of a World Council on Jewish Education in the Diaspora and a Bureau of Jewish Education for the collection and dissemination of information on Jewish education.

COMMUNITY RESPONSIBILITY FOR EDUCATION

Following are some of the resolutions unanimously adopted:

1) It is the responsibility of every Jewish community to regard Jewish education as of the highest priority.

2) It is the responsibility of every Jewish community to assure the means necessary for providing every Jewish child with a sound Jewish education. Current appropriations for Jewish education are woefully inadequate; they cannot provide every Jewish child with a sound Jewish education which it is due; nor do they correspond to the high priority which Jewish education should enjoy.

3) It is the responsibility of every Jewish community, while respecting ideological differences within that community, to promote the widest possible cooperation for the achievement of its educational aims.

4) It is the responsibility of every Jewish community, while respecting ideological differences, to require minimum standards in education, such as adequate facilities, qualified teachers and general communal prestige.

5) It is the responsibility of every Jewish community to provide conditions for teachers such as salaries, pensions, etc., as will attract and maintain a full-time Jewish teaching profession in that community.

6) It is the responsibility of every Jewish community to make every effort to provide teacher training on both pre-service and in-service levels.

7) We recommend the establishment of a world-wide agency for Jewish education to serve as a clearing house for the exchange of ideas and information, to promote research and experimentation and to provide educational assistance to unserved Jewish communities, and especially to the decimated surviving ones.

DR. JOSEPH DIAMOND, famous Toronto educator, played leading role at Jerusalem conference.

MAURIAC

forget that smoke. Never shall I forget the little faces of the children, whose bodies I saw turned into wreaths of smoke beneath a silent blue sky. Never shall I forget those flames which consumed my Faith forever. Never shall I forget that nocturnal silence which deprived me, for all eternity, of the desire to live. Never shall I forget those moments which murdered my God and my soul and turned my dreams to dust. Never shall I forget these things, even if I am condemned to live as long as God Himself. Never."

It was then that I understood what had first drawn me to the young Israeli: that look, as of a Lazarus risen from the dead, yet still a prisoner within the grim confines where he had strayed, stumbling among the shameful corpses. For him, Nietzsche's cry expressed an almost physical reality: God is dead, the God of love, of gentleness, of comfort, the God of Abraham, of Isaac, of Jacob, has vanished forevermore, beneath the gaze of this child, in the smoke of a human holocaust exacted by Race, the most voracious of all idols. And how many pious Jews have experienced this death! On that day, horrible even among those days of horror, when the child watched the hanging (yes!) of another child who, he tells us, had the face of a sad angel, he heard someone behind him groan: " 'Where is God? Where is He? Where can He be now?' and a voice within me answered. 'Where? Here He is — He has been hanged here, on these gallows.' "

On the last day of the Jewish year, the child was present at the solemn ceremony of Rosh Hashanah. He heard thousands of these slaves cry with one voice: "Blessed be the name of the Eternal." Not so long before, he too would have prostrated himself, and with such adoration, such awe, such love! But on this day he did not kneel. The human creature, outraged and humiliated beyond all that heart and spirit can conceive of, defied a divinity who was blind and deaf. "That day, I had ceased to plead. I was no longer capable of lamentation. On the contrary, I felt very strong. I was the accuser, and God the accused. My eyes were open and I was alone — terribly alone a world without God and without man. Without love or mercy. I had ceased to be anything but ashes, yet I felt myself to be stronger than the Almighty, to whom my life had been tied for so long. I stood amid that praying congregation, observing it like a stranger."

The Jewish nation has been resurrected from among its thousands of dead. It is through them that it lives again. We do not know the worth of one single drop of blood, one single tear. All is grace. If the Eternal is the Eternal, the last word for each one of us belongs to Him. This is what I should have told this Jewish child. But I could only embrace him, weeping.

HUMAN RELATIONS

A Daughter's Morality

DR. ROSE N. FRANZBLAU

QUESTION: My daughter is 18, and her boyfriend is 20. They are both juniors in college. Although they are both very young they are very much in love with each other and hope to marry when they graduate.

I recently discovered that they are intimate physically. Although I suspected they had been necking heavily, I never thought that it had gone this far. They both know that I am aware of the situation, although we have never talked about it. I do not dare to tell my husband because it would make him ill.

It would be impossible for the children to get married now, for financial reasons. They both have a wonderful future if they can go through school.

ANSWER: Youngsters who are truly and maturely in love with each other control their desires. They do it, among other reasons, out of protective love and consideration for one another.

When girls behave contrary to the values and morals which they have been taught at home, it often points to the existence of a shallow and distant relationship with the father. This may be because the father is weak and is ruled and dominated by his wife. He may be openly submissive, or act like a bully and so cover up his feelings of inadequacy and inferiority. Such mothers often stand between the father and the daughter, not permitting any closeness to be established between them. This may be done under the guise of protecting the father from being troubled by his daughter, or protecting the daughter from being too severely ruled or disciplined by her father.

As a result the father may be only a shadowy figure in the girl's emotional life As soon as she goes out on her own, she begins to search for a male figure to fill this void. Her lack of closeness to her father seems to drive such a girl to get too close to the man who responds to her, as if to make up for all the years of separation and isolation from her father. The psychological separation from the father also keeps the youngster from experiencing and absorbing the authority of her father.

The avoidance of the issue in your household, at the present time, seems like another example of the kind of attitude and behavior towards your daughter that led her to this behavior in the first place. Everybody is aware of the situation, but nobody says anything about it. But to her, your silence means that you don't care enough to show your displeasure or the fear of her displeasure, and the possibility that she might blame you for her transgression is greater than your love for her.

By keeping the facts from your husband you are preventing him from exercising his authority. You are also hurting your daughter by denying her the protectiveness she so sorely needs. As parents, it is your responsibility not only to express your disapproval but to come up with some positive measures to help your daughter remedy the situation. She needs to determine what drove her into this physical intimacy knowing full well the risks she was running. She may also need help in restoring her own good concept of herself, which this behavior may have damaged.

Such cases often do not end in marriage. The youngsters use love as a rationalization for their intimacy. Most often they are not ready for the responsibilities of love and marriage, and basically they disapprove of their own behavior. Their guilt may show itself in the course of time, in hostility toward each other, and the relationship may then break up. The girl will often say that the boy changed greatly and turned out to be an entirely different person from the one she loved originally.

You ought to offer your daughter help in the form of psychiatric counseling. Waiting until real trouble develops could have the most devastating effect upon your husband.

heart disease among the Yeminite men; among the Yeminite women the incidence was less than 1%. In contrast to these figures, the incidence of heart disease among the European men was 3.7 per cent and among the women 3.4 per cent.

The medical researchers—one of them was Dr. M. Shadel, a member of the JDC-Malben staff—found that the blood pressure of the European women was considerably higher than that of Yemenite women. There was no significant difference in the blood pressure of the men of both groups. The researchers also found that the degree of cholesterol deposits was much lower among the Yemenites than among the Europeans. Most important, the study revealed that electrocardiagraphic signs of atherosclerotic heart disease, and incidence and severity of atherosclerosis of the abdominal aorta were about three times higher among the European immigrants.

The study was supported by grants from JDC-Malben and the Israel General Federation of Labor.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

POTATO CHEESE BALLS

2½ cups mashed potatoes
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup shredded sharp cheese
1 egg, beaten
2 tablespoons milk
½ cup fine bread or cracker crumbs

Combine potatoes, salt and cheese. Mix thoroughly and form into balls (the size of golf balls). Roll in mixture of egg and milk, then in crumbs. Brown in hot oven (450 degrees) about 10 minutes. Yields 5 servings.

FOOD TIP: Use from ½ to 1 cup boiling water for cooking 1 lb. of potatoes. Water left after cooking should be saved to flavor sauces, soups or gravy. The water contains minerals and vitamins.
